Semiotics of Friendship: Relations Beyond Interactions

The 49th SSA Annual Conference
Charles University, Prague, Czechia, September 24–28, 2025

The Theme

The importance of friendship in the world today is undeniable. The notion of friendship – the very idea that leads to building bridges, enabling communication, and fostering understanding – remains at the heart of relationships as the cornerstone of cultures. It calls for the importance of the other, the collective, and the social in a nurturing and cultivating way, giving voice to all participants in every scale of intelligent relations. The semiotics of friendship depends on our manner of living and on our relations with each other that expand over generations in an evolutionary process, and understanding the nature of relations is at the heart of the semiotics of friendship.

According to John Deely, interactions cease, but relations live on. Often not recognized as an element of reality, relations cannot be seen, heard, touched, or perceived directly by any of our senses. Relations are of an entirely different order from interactions, indifferent to distance in space or time. Relations of friendship, through love, not only convey the connections of humans to their environment (Umwelt) but also imply the meaning of being in the lifeworld (Lebenswelt). The value of friendly interactions and their transcendent friendship-driven relations is the power to constantly and positively modify relationships, as Charles Peirce once put it, by altering the rules of self-control, actions, and experiences of the participants therein. The genuine relations of friendship among humans constitutes the desire for constantly seeking mutual fulfillment in the creation and experiencing, through the cultivation of friendship, further manifestations of evolutionary love.

Description of the Conference

“The Semiotics of Friendship” is the theme of the 49th Semiotic Society of America (SSA) Annual Conference, September 24–28, 2025, hosted by Charles University, Prague, Czechia. The 2025 SSA Conference will be in-person, with support for a limited amount of on-line participation. The Conference will assemble a unique group of international transdisciplinary experts from a wide range of disciplines, such as anthropology, biology, cognitive science, communication, cybernetics, design, fine arts, law, literary criticism, linguistics, logic, marketing, media studies, mathematics, pedagogy, philosophy, psychology, religion, sociology, and technology. This will be the SSA's first Annual Conference ever to be held outside of the Americas, and the enthusiasm of Charles University in hosting this event is indeed a tribute to the semiotic awareness of its scholars.

Venue

The conference will take place at Charles University, in Prague, Czechia, from Wednesday, September 24, to Sunday, September 28, 2025.

We encourage early registration. (You can become a member of the Semiotic Society of America, which is required to present a paper at the Conference, by using the same link.)

Additional Conference Information

Papers presented at the SSA Conference will be considered for publication in Semiotics 2025, the Yearbook of the Semiotic Society of America. The SSA Yearbook is an annual peer reviewed publication series sponsored by the Semiotic Society of America, providing both a timely overview of current developments in semiotic research and a regular outlet for members of the Society to publish papers on their current work. Further details and deadlines will be specified in the Annual Conference Program.

Please note that in accord with Article 4 Section 4 of the SSA Constitution: Only Individual, Student, and Honorary members in good standing can make presentations at the SSA Conference and may submit papers to the SSA Yearbook.

Student submissions are eligible for the Roberta Kevelson Award, which will honor the best student paper presented at the 2025 Annual Conference. Students who wish to be considered for the Kevelson Award should indicate their interest at the time of abstract submission. Full paper submissions must be uploaded to EasyChair by July 31, 2025. Questions regarding the Roberta Kevelson Award should be directed to the Kevelson Committee Chair, at <director+kevelson@semioticsocietyofamerica.org>
